Description

Very Good Punched Copy

Paul Koenig's Market Garden is a series of small-format, competitive introductory-level wargames covering the critical first three days of Operation Market-Garden, where the Allies attempted to seize a series of bridges in Holland and end WWII before Christmas. Each game in the series covers a separate bridge: Arnhem, Nijmegen, and Eindhoven.

As a player, you must command your German or Allied forces so as to capture key objectives on the board while keeping your casualties down (and your opponent's casualties up).

Eindhoven Bridge is the second game in the Market Garden series, covering the events happening at this vital river crossing from September 17th-19th, 1944.

Each player commands their German or American forces so as to capture key objectives on the board while keeping your casualties down (and your opponent's casualties up).

With plenty of decision making and Optional Rules to extend gameplay and realism, the very collapse of Germany is at stake as you make your stand and bring your enemies down at Eindhoven Bridge!
